Reconstruct the story of the mouse and the lion by correctly arranging the fragments.

When he got there, he found the lion trapped in a net.
"I'll save you!" said the mouse.
"You? You are too small for such a hard task".

From that day on they were friends forever.

The lion wanted to eat him up.
"Please, Mr. Lion, don't eat me.
One day you might need me."
The lion answered, "Why would I need someone as small as you?"

Seeing how tiny the mouse was, the lion took pity on him and set him free.

One day, the mouse heard an almighty roar.
It was the lion.

Once upon a time there was a little mouse who,
coming out of his hole, met an enormous lion.

The mouse started to nibble at the rope of the net and the lion was saved.
